INVESTIGATORS DEBATE BRADLEY REFUSAL TO ANSWER QUESTIONS

DECISION TO BE REACHED ON THURSDAY

Washington, May 16 — (AP) — The senate inquiry into Gen. Douglas MacArthur's dismissal was broken off today by a hot argument over whether Gen. Omar Bradley should tell about his private talks with President Truman.

Bradley, chairman of the joint chiefs of staff, refused yesterday to tell what he and Mr. Truman said to each other prior to the firing of the Far Eastern commander. Today, the White House said Mr. Truman does not want Bradley to do so.

Nevertheless, some Republicans on the inquiry panel — made up of the senate armed services and foreign relations committees — were insistent that Bradley should tell.

While Bradley sat silently in the witness chair for more than two hours today, the senators argued heatedly. Charges implied and direct, of trying to play politics figured in the debate.

In the upshot:

1. Bradley was dismissed as a witness until Monday.
2. The senators agreed to vote at noon (EST) tomorrow on whether they should insist that the five-star general tell them about his conference with the president.

This left the course of the inquiry up in the air for the immediate future, but stymied it for the day at least.

Atop the charges hurled in the committee room itself, senator Fulbright (D-Ark.) told reporters on leaving that he fears Republicans may be "trying to sabotage" the whole inquiry into MacArthur's ouster.

Fulbright said the same issue of confidential communications between President Truman and General MacArthur and Secretary of Defense Marshall "could have been raised but were not."

Chairman Russell (D-Ga.) announced the committee will meet at 9 A. M. (EST) tomorrow. Russell also said he expects Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg, top air force officer and a member of the joint

Committee Clamps Down On All Proposed Expenditures Until Tax Dispute Is Settled

Harrisburg, May 16 — (AP) — The house appropriations committee clamped down today on all proposed state expenditures for the next two years until the senate resolves its differences with Gov. Fine on the tax program.

Chairman Norman Wood (R-Lancaster) disclosed the action after introducing interim appropriation bills to carry on state operations for only the month of June.

"There's no use doing anything about general appropriation bills until the tax question is decided," said Wood. "You can't make appropriations without money."

Another committee spokesman, who declined quotation by name, hinted that the governor was ready to veto all appropriation bills until the senate (1) enacts his proposal for a one-half of one percent income tax, or (2) offers a

A bloc of 11 Republican senators refused to support the income levy at a GOP caucus Monday. It forced the administration to return the bill to the senate finance committee rather than see it defeated in a floor vote.

Wood's bills, almost certain to be enacted quickly to avoid a breakdown of commonwealth fiscal operations, called for $10,000,000 for public assistance and $9,000,000 for state departments and bureaus.

In another prime development, the House Labor Relations committee approved a bill to set up a fair employment practices commission in Pennsylvania.

The committee acted after Gov. John S. Fine urged the group "to clear the way" for a house vote on the controversial issue.

The action marks the first time in four years that such a bill has received committee approval—a big hurdle in the path to a vote.

The appropriations committee refused to act on any more money bills was interpreted as a house move to go along with Fine's reported stand that the next step on taxes must be taken by the senate.

From the Democrats came a suggestion that loopholes in the present corporation tax laws be closed as a means of bringing in an additional $40,000,000 every two years.

"There is a circumvention of the tax law (by corporations) to the tune of $40,000,000 a biennium," said Sen. John H. Dent, Democratic floor leader.

He called for eliminating tax exemptions for subsidiary corpora-

EXTENSION OF DEFENSE ACT IS OPPOSED

Washington, May 16 — (AP) — The chairman of the senate banking committee says the Defense Production act (DPA) and the wage-price controls it authorizes are in danger of rejection by congress.

"I want to warn the administration," Senator Maybank (D-N.C.) told Price Director Michael V. Disalle, that "I do not know if there is going to be any extension." The present law expires June 30. Maybank's committee is holding hearings on President Truman's request that DPA be extended, broadened and strengthened.

Maybank ordered a closed session today to explore with Secretary of Agriculture Brannan how far he plans to go if congress does extend the act and grants powers to pay subsidies on farm products to keep consumer prices down.

Maybank said defense officials feared premature disclosure of what crops Brannan had in mind might send their prices soaring. He said Brannan also would testify at a public hearing immediately after the closed one.

The committee gave Di Salle a rough going over at a hearing yesterday.

Maybank said, "it is going to be very, very hard to get any bill passed at all."

Di Salle said he had "more confidence in the sense of responsibility of congress" than to believe it would allow the act to expire and kill off the system of wage and price controls.

Pittsburgh, May 16 — (AP) — James F. Malone, former state insurance commissioner and an ex-Allegheny county Republican chairman, today circulated nominating petitions for the post of Allegheny county district attorney. One of his three opponents is the present Republican county chairman, L. Pat McGrath.

YEGGS SENTENCED

Pittsburgh, May 16 — (AP) — Claude Kindred, 21, of Chicago, and Mary Smith, 24, of Alabama, were sentenced to five year prison terms yesterday for the $1,099 robbery of the Bank of the Ohio Valley on Pittsburgh's north side. The bank was robbed last January.

Nephew of Famous German Composer Dies of Heart Attack During Concert

Baltimore, May 16 — (AP) — Felix Robert Mendelssohn, great grand nephew of the famous German composer, died on the concert stage last night.

The 60-year-old musician was in the midst of Dohnany's concert piece in D major—a composition he introduced to the world in Berlin in 1918 — when the boy went limp in his grasp and he collapsed.

Attendees quickly rushed him to Mercy Hospital from the Cado Hall. But he was dead on arrival there.

He began his musical career in his native Germany as an eight-year-old prodigy. In Berlin he wrote his most noted composition, the Passion Opera Christus. His popularity was cut short when Hitler came into power, He

DEER IN DISTRESS—This fine 150-pound buck, heading toward Conewago creek, almost cleared the high iron fence on the State Hospital property near Blomquist's store early this morning. But his left hind leg caught caught in the iron pickets, fracturing the limb. Mrs. Minnie Hadley, who lives nearby, heard the deer thrashing about, and called Deputy Game Protector Ted Rogers, who shot the animal. The photo was snapped by Howard Lincoln.

Judges officiating last evening were Eleanor Sheldon, art consultant in Jamestown schools; Richard Ramsauer, art teacher in Jamestown High School and Jamestown Community College; Kathryn Kennedy, Mead township teacher and former art instructor at Spring Valley, N. Y., and Sea Pine School for Girls, Cape Cod; Mrs. Paul Sardeson, who conducts a ceramics studio in Erie and won first prize with her work in the 28th annual exhibition of the Art Club of Erie; Clayton S. Hoyle, member and former president of the Jamestown Camera Club and industrial art teacher in Washington Junior High School in that city.

In the Photography Division, "Reflections" and "Galleria", both by Raymond Rapp, tied for first place and judges rated his "Two of a Kind" in third place. Amusement was expressed when it was learned all were the work of one contestant, judges referring to their "maturity in development and flawless printing." Honorable mention in this group was given "Gonna Be Delleh, I Bet" by Louis Lind; "Castles in the Air", Dr. Jack A. Wolford; "By Dawn's Early Light", Don Sharp, and "Nature Kneels", Howard Grotzinger.

First prize in the adult painting group went to "Angles From a 3rd Floor Window" done in oil by Alda Chapel; 2nd, "Winter Sunset", oil by Gerald McGee; 3rd, "The Locket", an oil by Clyde Smith; 4th, "Harvest Primitive" (Turn to Page Twelve)

OPS orders require a slaughterer to get a registration number in order to slaughter livestock legally. He must have such a number before he can receive such a quota of livestock for slaughtering.

Morgan said the difference between the number of slaughterers reported in operation last year and the number now registered is the basis of reports of possible illegal slaughtering.

He said OPS agents also will check on registered slaughterers to see whether they are keeping within their legal quotas.

Army in Charge of Bolivia Government

La Paz, Bolivia, May 16 — (AP) — The army seized the government of Bolivia today. President Mamerto Urriolagotia left the country and Gen. Hugo Ballivan was installed as president and minister of defense by a military junta.

The political color of the upheaval in this turbulent, tin-rich nation was not immediately clear. The military junta, however, issued a manifesto saying the new government would control "the mineral resources of the country and that these would be used 'for the benefit of the public and in projects for the progress and development of the nation.'"

The upheaval took place in an atmosphere of tension after the May 6 elections in which Victor Paz Estenssoro, exiled leader of the nation's tin miners, won most votes but not enough to gain a clear majority which would entitle him automatically to the presidency.

Deposed President Urriolagotia departed the capital for Arica, across the border in Chile.

Sec. Acheson Says He Intends to Stick

Washington, May 16 — (AP) — Secretary of State Acheson said today he has "no intention" of resigning and intends to stay in the administration "as long as the president wants me to stay."

Acheson was asked about his attitude toward his job at a news conference and made this comment which he later authorized for direct quotation:

"I have no intention of resigning."

Housewives Press Fight for Colored Oleo Legislation

BULLETIN

Harrisburg, May 16 — (AP) — A delegation of determined housewives, urging removal of the ban against colored oleomargarine in Pennsylvania, were promised further consideration of their cause today. Sen. George B. Scarlett (R-Chester), chairman of the Senate Agriculture committee, told the group his committee will "give more study to the issue."

Harrisburg, May 16 — (AP) — Housewives converged on Harrisburg today to press their demands for legislation to legalize the sale of colored oleomargarine.

Headed by Judge Lois Mary McBride, of Pittsburgh, the delegation scheduled a meeting with Gov. John S. Fine and legislators handling a number of oleo bills.

They brought with them a two-mile long petition signed by thousands of persons around the state favoring the sale of yellow oleo.

Judge McBride said the delegates represented statewide women's organizations including the American Association of University Women, the Council of Republican Women, Federation of Democratic Women, Pennsylvania Federation of Women's Clubs and American Legion Auxiliary.

Plan For Wired Television System For Warren Is Abandoned By Station WNAE

A wired television system for Warren has been found to be too expensive at this time. David Potter, manager of Radio Station WNAE, has studied several plans over the last three months.

Any plan acceptable to the Bell Telephone Company and Warren Borough Council would have to be set-up as a semi-utility and the cables and other equipment erected and maintained in accordance with the requirements and specifications of the Bell System practices. A yearly pole rental would be paid to the utility owning the poles on which attachments were made. Many poles would have to be replaced by higher poles to accommodate the additional cables.

A semi-annual or oftener inspection would be made by the Bell Company at the television company's expense. Various bonds and insurance would also be carried.

As a basis of the study, 900 cards were sent out to residents of the fifth ward. Every house from Jackson street north to the Quaker Hill road received a questionnaire. Thirty people said that they would like to subscribe to wired television. They said that an installation charge of $135 and a monthly rental of $5.00 would be acceptable.

The initial cost of installing the wired system would run from $35,000 to $100,000. An Eastern wired television company has already spent over $100,000 in a city of about 25,000 people. At present, they have more than 100 subscribers.

Because of the lack of interest and the high cost of a permanent installation, Mr. Potter has decided to drop the plan at this time.

Strong Blows Are Reported From Chunchon, Northeast of Seoul, to the Sea of Japan

Tokyo, Thursday, May 17 — (AP) — Red troops poured out of the hills in attacks all along the eastern front of Korea Wednesday night. It was too early to tell whether it was the start of the expected Red offensive, or new probing in force.

They struck strong blows from Chunchon, 45 miles northeast of Seoul, eastward to the sea of Japan.

The attacks came not long after Maj. Gen. William Hoge, commander of the U. S. Ninth Corps, predicted the Red offensive would open Friday. Hoge said his troops would welcome it.

The general said if the Chinese follow their "previous pattern of attacking on the full moon, the blow should come soon. The moon comes full on the 18th of the month. That gives him two days."

(The World Almanac and the U. S. coast and geodetic survey say the full moon comes next Monday.)

Allied intelligence officers said a striking force of 350,000 Reds was ready for the signal to begin their biggest offensive of the war.

One United Nations divisional officer said the Communists "will have to do more probing" before the attack. "They are not too familiar with our defense lines."

Peiping radio sought to bolster Chinese troops by assuring them they have shown that the "United States is nothing but a paper tiger." The Red China broadcast said the war will continue until "we drive the mad, shameless imperialists completely out of Korea."

American troops, somewhat bored with waiting, have had time in a two and a half week lull to thoroughly bolster their defenses. A division spokesman said the Allied forces are probably in the best positions they have manned yet. He said they're confident and in good spirits.

The Chinese sharpened their probing attacks Wednesday morning, concentrating on the central front. They have moved in considerable strength across the Pukhan- and Soyang rivers on either side of Chunchon.

One bugle blowing attack drove Allies from their positions east of Chunchon before artillery broke up the Chinese force.

Korean Reds hit southwest of Inje, after recapturing the highway town on the eastern front.

Skirmishing stepped up on the western front, too, with several sharp clashes about 17 miles north of Seoul. The Reds turned anti-tank guns on one armored American reconnaissance patrol.

"It looks as if they are just about ready and will be on their way down to us pretty soon," one officer said.

Randolph reported all signs seemed to point to the final moves before a typical Chinese offensive (Turn to Page Twelve)

Government-Owned Limousine Bearing Truman's Sister Stopped For Speeding

Washington, May 16 — (AP) — Rep. Keating (R-N.Y.), who for the second time has produced information calculated to embarrass the Democratic occupants of the White House, says he has no "pipe line."

"But," he adds, "I have a lot of friends in government."

Yesterday Keating told the house a government-owned limousine, bearing President Truman's sister, was stopped for speeding at 70 to 75 miles an hour through Hopewell, N. Y., last Saturday.

The driver of the car, whom Keating named as Grady A. Stowe, a special agent assigned to guard a member of the president's family, was fined $20 by a justice of the peace.

Stowe, Keating said, wasn't able to produce a driver's license. He told authorities according to Keating's report, that "the president will be distressed if his sister is detained."

Prior to his disclosure of the speeding incident Keating predicted some weeks ago that a "White House employee who was the recipient of a much-publicized mink coat, would be discharged. She was Mrs. E. Merl Young, whose husband was accused by a senate committee of "influencing" Reconstruction Finance Corporation (RFC) loan policy. The mink coat was paid for, as a loan to Young, by a lawyer for a New York furrier seeking an RFC loan.

The White House denied the report, but accepted Mrs. Young's resignation about two weeks later. At Hopewell, N. Y., there was nothing to indicate that Miss Mary Jane Truman, of Grand View, had been involved in the speeding incident.

In his house speech, Keating said "Investigation developed that it was the president's sister traveling around in western New York in a government-owned limousine."

"The president has been taking everybody else in the country for a ride for six years. Why not his own sister?"

He added that Miss Truman—whose name he did not use—was in no way to blame.

Delegate Pledges Britain Will Stand With United States

New York, May 16 — (AP) — Sir Gladwyn Jebb, chief British delegate to the United Nations, pledged that Britain will stand "wholeheartedly with the United States in the general struggle against Communist-inspired aggression."

Jebb defended Britain's record in the Korean war and her trade policy toward Red China in a speech before the New York City Bar Association.

Great Britain, he declared, "is wholeheartedly with the United States in the general struggle against Communist-inspired aggression. x x x Everything we can do, short of fatally weakening our main position, to assist the general effort, we shall do, even if that results, as it may well result, in some lowering of the standard of living in Great Britain itself which has been so laboriously built up since the war."

He said that Britain early in the war halted exports of strategic materials to Communist China, particularly petroleum products, but not rubber. Now, he said, rubber shipments also are embargoed.

The British diplomat predicted that the U. N. general assembly will adopt far-reaching embargo recommendations later this week. The 60-nation assembly political committee meets at Flushing Meadow tomorrow to open debate on the embargo plan, recommended by a 12-nation sanctions committee Monday.

Britain is joining the U. S., France, Vataaank Venezuela in presenting the resolution. It calls for halting export of arms, ammunition, atomic energy materials, petroleum and other war materials to Red China.

Washington, May 16 — (AP) — John Foster Dulles, Republican adviser to the State Department, says the dismissal of Gen. Douglas MacArthur from his Pacific command "struck down" what the Japanese people regarded as "a symbol of a just and quick peace."

Dulles is conducting special negotiations to arrange a Japanese peace treaty. He spoke last night in a radio interview (CBS "Capitol Clockroom").

He said MacArthur's dismissal would not directly affect his peace treaty negotiations. But, he added in response to a question, the Japanese people are now afraid and unless they get a peace treaty soon "they will accept the keys to their jail—perhaps from Russia."

Dulles said Japan is Russia's "primary goal" in the Far East. He called the invasion of South Korea part of a Russian plan to dominate Japan.

TEACHER ACQUITTED

Meadville, May 16 — (AP) — John H. Liggett, Townville High School teacher, has been acquitted of simple assault upon a 17-year-old boy student. The charges were preferred against Liggett after Meredith L. Webster, a junior, was reported attacked in the school gym January 28.

Interesting Talk Is Given Here By Fugitive From Reds

"The struggle of the Communist regime against the people of Poland continues unabated," members of the Warren Lions club were informed in an interesting talk by Alojzy Adamczyk, fugitive from the Nazis and Soviets, since they invaded that country in 1938, delivered before that organization at the weekly meeting Tuesday noon at the YWCA.

Continuing the speaker said, "It could be assumed, after almost six years of police terror, that the ranks of the enemies of the people would have been decimated and the regime permitted to relax its rule. But somehow the ranks of the opposition appear to be swelling, the budget of the Ministry of Public Security grows yearly, the secret police network expands, and the Government's housing program is mainly devoted to the construction of new prisons and forced labor camps.

"The prison system has been adjusted to the needs of the huge machinery of political persecution. The purpose of arrest and imprisonment is to physically and morally break the persons deprived of their freedom, to mould them into submissive objects of a show trial, or—if necessary—to liquidate them without publicity. Other highlights about the country dominated by Communists, as brought out by the speaker, were:

The vast majority of the people in these countries, including the Russians, are violently opposed to Communist dictatorship. There are a few Communists in the Soviet controlled countries. The people of the Communist controlled countries know, on the basis of their own painful experience, what Communist rule means. These facts are well known to the Soviet dictators. This is the reason why they do not dare to give the people a chance to express their will in free, unfettered elections. A Government which has the confidence of the people, does not use terror and is not afraid of honest elections. The Communists never obtained a majority by free, democratic elections in any of the countries ruled by them.

Without aid from the outside world, the people now under Soviet control are not able to free themselves. It must be realized that a revolution of unarmed people against the well armed forces of the Communist regimes would be a hopeless undertaking. They would not have more of a chance than have inmates of a well guarded prison. As long as the present situation prevails there is little chance of a successful uprising in the Soviet controlled countries.

Learn How to Subjugate Husband

Yes, Ladies, Rita Miller, here-with pictured as married and you can take it for granted that she doesn't experience any trouble with her husband, Mr. Gus Tallefero. Fact is, Gus couldn't punch his way out of a paper bag any-how, which leaves all the muscles in the family the property of friend wife Rita and therefore all family disputes and arguments are brought to a successful conclusion—in her favor.

Her highly-developed sense of coordination as a featured endurance aerialist is the direct result of the laborious process of trial and error, through many long months of patient practice to the accompaniment of aching muscles and calloused palms. Reducing diets are not matters of interest to Rita—she is able to dine on whatever appeals to her fancy, secure in the knowledge that her work aloft on the swinging trapeze daily at 3:15 and 8:00 p.m. will more than keep her figure replete to the size dresses that are standard for girls of her height. . . . but not "punch."

She is a featured performer with the great Biller Bros. Circus, you can feel free to interview her on "how to handle a husband" when America's newest and largest circus comes to Warren next Wednesday, May 23rd, and sets up its acres of canvas on

V.F.W. Post Plans For Annual Buddy Poppy Day May 18

Hundreds of orphans of America's veterans have had the chance to become healthy self-supporting citizens, because the American people generously supported the annual sale of Buddy Poppies by the Veterans of Foreign Wars. How this was accomplished was explained in a statement issued today by Commander R. G. Akers, of Post 631, with the announcement that May 18th has been selected for the annual sale of Buddy Poppies in this city.

"One penny from each Buddy Poppy the V.F.W. has sold during the past 25 years has been earmarked for the maintenance of the V.F.W. National Home for Widows and Orphans at Eaton Rapids, Michigan," Commander Akers explained. "This National Home is the only orphan project of its kind being supported and maintained by a veteran organization. Child welfare experts who have watched its growth and development since 1925 unanimously agree that the V.F.W. National Home is the finest child welfare venture of its kind in the world. This National Home is unique in the very fact that it is not operated as a typical orphan asylum, or anything that resembles an 'institution.'"

"On the contrary, we have built a child village, a community of individual homes, one that is comparable to the typical residential section of any modern city. Children under our care are brought up as members of an average family. Boys and girls live under the same roof—like brothers and sisters—where they enjoy the care of a competent house mother. There is no regimentation at the V.F.W. Home. There are no uniforms, no drills, no gong nor signals that tell these children when it is time to eat or go to bed."

"We treat them like we would our own children, with clothes to fit their individual personalities. They get their education in the public schools, where they learn how to mix socially with the children from ordinary American homes."

OPPOSES GOVERNMENT PLANT EXPANSION

In seeking renewal of the Defense Production Act, which expires June 30, President Truman asked for authority to set up a new defense plant corporation. Such an agency would be empowered to undertake plant expansion deemed necessary by the government but not projected by private industry.

A high government official, Jesse Larson, head of the General Services Administration, strongly advises against this course. He is unusually qualified on the subject, since he headed the War Assets Administration after World War II, governing disposal of war plants financed and owned by the U. S.

Larson argues that a new defense plant set-up would exert heavy drain on the public purse. He says that plant disposal after World War II cost the taxpayers nearly $1,000,000,000 for administrative overhead alone, not counting the huge losses on the actual sales. At one time, 62,000 federal workers were devoted to this job. He sees no need for repeating this kind of performance.

Other dangers may lie in this proposed arrangement. It can't be forgotten that Mr. Truman more than once has recommended he be given this same authority when no defense emergency existed or was threatened.

Behind those earlier proposals was this theory: That if in any particular field private enterprise is unable or unwilling to expand as the government believes it should, then the government should step in and finance the expansion itself.

Offhand this may seem to some a pretty harmless notion. Actually it is loaded with dynamite. It means that, at the government's own discretion, it could enter into competition with industry. If you like labels, you could call it socialism.

The fact that some of the World War II plants were built by government has nothing to do with the case. In wartime, government inevitably takes unto itself many powers which in a democracy should reside with individual citizens and organizations.

Whether there's an emergency or not, a lot of industries undoubtedly are extremely conservative about adding plant facilities. Some were burned by over-expansion in earlier periods. Others are just cautious.

Where this foot-dragging can be shown by business and economic experts to be handicapping the general growth of the economy, it certainly must be countered by some kind of government effort. Financial aid and protection is one important prod. Steady pressure on the industry through public channels is another.

But these devices should not include government power to finance and build its own plants. The Administration's obvious interest in exercising this authority in or out of crisis makes such a grant too risky for the free American economy.

Only the existence of actual large-scale war, in which time to apply the usual prods might be a luxury, would seem to justify sweeping entry of the federal government into industrial plant expansion.

COMPARE CASUALTIES

Because of the stress laid upon our Korean casualties by General MacArthur and others, the idea has got around that casualty rates and totals in this conflict are worse than any that American fighting men have ever known. Thus it may be wise to compare them with the record of some principal combat units in World War II.

Up until recently, the six U. S. divisions in Korea had lost 10,813 men killed. During about the same span of time, six key American divisions which fought from the Normandy beachhead to the German surrender lost 14,157 men killed. By this measure, the Korean campaign is not our roughest war.

Nor have casualties been mounting, as some people seem to believe. The rate was highest in the first critical weeks last summer. The highest numerical totals came in the weeks during and right after the Inchon landings in September, 1950. The December retreat from the Yalu river stood next highest. Neither of those totals have since been equaled.

With the oiling program well under way in all parts of the borough it behooves motorists to be a little wary in approaching earth streets.

Among the busy spots in the town these rare May evenings are the Beaty playgrounds and athletic field, both of which were well populated last night.

Here And There

An interesting visitor to the Times-Mirror office Tuesday afternoon was Alexey Adamczyk, speaker earlier in the day at the meeting of the Lions Club, and who escaped from Poland after the Nazis and Soviets invaded that country in September, 1939. Probably the most interesting part of the brief interview we had with him pertained to the several types of confinement in Communist Poland. The first of these he described as "temporary arrest." He said every precinct of the citizens' militia (uniformed police) has on its premises a barred cell, where the prisoners are detained for 24 hours formally, but in reality for several days. This is the mildest form of confinement. From the militia cell the prisoners are dispatched either to the Security Bureau (U. B.) or to prison.

Another confinement, "Arrest in the U. B." was explained as follows. Here people are confined for an indefinite period. Sometimes they are taken only for interrogation but then held for months and even years. The prisoners are kept in a cellar without a stove, bed or light. The windows

WASHINGTON COLUMN

British Exterminate Reds To End 'Dirty War' in Malaya

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Mr. J. Chricton Mathison, a Malayan rubber plantation manager, passed through Washington the other day, en route to his home in Scotland for a vacation. While in Washington, Mr. Mathison told a story about one phase of the anti-Communist war in Asia, which doesn't get into the papers much in these parts.

Malaya is about the same size and shape as Florida. But four-fifths of Malaya is virgin jungle, far wilder and denser than the Everglades. Big Cypress swamp or the Lake Okechobee wilderness. There are other differences. Whereas the Florida bandits are one-armed, or else retired from the Chicago wilds to ocean front palaces of respectability, the Malayan bandits stick to the jungle.

There are an estimated 5000 to 6000 of them. About 1800 to 1900 have been killed. With luck, says Mathison, they can be exterminated in a couple of years. Or at least they can be so reduced in numbers that their organized resistance will be broken up. That is the good news in the situation. But it is the dirtiest kind of war.

The bandits don't fight in the open, nor in maneuvers. They lie in ambush along the roads. And when a planter or tin mine operator or government official passes by—European and Asian alike—the bandits open fire, kill, then disappear into the jungle.

PLANTER Mathison's Bukit Paloh estate of 5000 acres, owned by a British company, is some 120 miles north of Singapore. His nearest neighbor is ten miles away. Along the road between them seven men have been ambushed and killed. Most roads are now being cleared of jungle, 100 yards on either side, to end ambushes.

The life of a planter today is pretty much the same anywhere on the peninsula. His house is surrounded by barbed wire. He carries a gun and travels with an armed guard wherever he goes. At night he must mount half a dozen guards.

Workmen on the plantations are now being moved into compounds to give them greater protection and to stop terrorism against the natives and Chinese who supply most of the labor.

All these safety measures are part of what is known as the Briggs defense plan. It takes its name from Gen. Sir Harold Briggs of the British Army, who has been director of operations against the bandits. He has about 25,000 British regulars plus some 75,000 police.

They now hunt bandits the way the Malayan suitans used to hunt tigers. The only new touches are armored cars, tanks and airplanes. But they're no good in the jungles, where they may take a week to hack a mile off the trails.

THE bandits that have been caught have been definitely identified as Communists. The war in Malaya is part and parcel of the whole war in Korea, the Philippines, Viet Nam, says Mr. Mathison. But the leader of the Malayan Communies is unknown. There is no Ho Chi-minh, no Mao Tse-tung or other central figure masterminding the war. Direction is believed to come from Russia through China. Most of the bandits are alien Chinese, meaning Chinese not born in Malaya.

No arms supplies are known to have come from Russia or Red China by airplane or submarine. The bandit supply of arms—and it is a good one—came from the surrender of British and then Japanese armies on Malaya.

A year or so ago the Malayan Federated States government thought it had the movement licked. Then the British government recognized the Chinese Communist government and threw the whole anti-Red drive on Malaya into a tailspin. British planters didn't like that a bit. But Mr. Mathison says he'll go back to fight bandits again, beds and only thin mattresses are spread on the floor. Food consists of one pound of bread, black coffee and a thin soup daily. Parcels can be delivered one day each week and consist of one pound of lard or salt pork and four pounds of bread. Prison directors or senior U. B. officers frequently visit the cells asking if there are any complaints. Those who dare to complain are punished by the removal of mattress or the withholding of the daily food ration.

Living conditions are worse in forced labor camps whose inmates must perform hard physical work.

This 'N' That: M. A. Johnson, Corpus Christi, Tex., is visiting his brother Albert Johnson, and sister Alice Swanson, at Scandia, the first time he has been "home" in 42 years, during which time he has been employed as engineer by the Bell Telephone Co.; recently retired, he returned to Warren to visit relatives and renew old acquaintances. . . . Mischa Mischa-koff, distinguished violinist and concert master of the NBC Symphony and Chautauqua Orchestras, will conduct a workshop in stringed instruments at Chautauqua during the summer session beginning July 9. . . . The Busti, N. Y., fire department is planning an old-fashioned parade June 22, as part of the organization's gala day program, which sounds like it may offer an idea for the Jaycees Fourth of July celebration. . . . The Chautauqua Lake steamer "City of Jamestown," will operate this summer on chartered runs and may make public runs on Sunday afternoons if the sale of pre-season tickets reflects a public interest. . . . Scott Stuart, Sr., caller at the Times-Mirror office on a business errand Tuesday, displayed an interesting invitation to a "Complimentary Ball," held in James Hall, Warren, Tuesday, March 1, 1954, and it was surprising to find on the list of committee members a man by the name of L. L. Lowry, along with F. A. Randall, C. M. Dimmick, J. D. James, J. B. Hall, H. C. Eddy, C. C. Wetmore, E. T. C. Valentine and Dr. M. F. Abele, and the bottom line on the card reminded - - - "Carriages will call for ladies at eight o'clock."

OPPOSES GOVERNMENT PLANT EXPANSION

In seeking renewal of the Defense Production Act, which expires June 30, President Truman asked for authority to set up a new defense plant corporation. Such an agency would be empowered to undertake plant expansion deemed necessary by the government but not projected by private industry.

A high government official, Jesse Larson, head of the General Services Administration, strongly advises against this course. He is unusually qualified on the subject, since he headed the War Assets Administration after World War II, governing disposal of war plants financed and owned by the U. S.

Larson argues that a new defense plant set-up would exert heavy drain on the public purse. He says that plant disposal after World War II cost the taxpayers nearly $1,000,000,000 for administrative overhead alone, not counting the huge losses on the actual sales. At one time, 62,000 federal workers were devoted to this job. He sees no need for repeating this kind of performance.

Other dangers may lie in this proposed arrangement. It can't be forgotten that Mr. Truman more than once has recommended he be given this same authority when no defense emergency existed or was threatened.

Behind those earlier proposals was this theory: That if in any particular field private enterprise is unable or unwilling to expand as the government believes it should, then the government should step in and finance the expansion itself.

Offhand this may seem to some a pretty harmless notion. Actually it is loaded with dynamite. It means that, at the government's own discretion, it could enter into competition with industry. If you like labels, you could call it socialism.

The fact that some of the World War II plants were built by government has nothing to do with the case. In wartime, government inevitably takes unto itself many powers which in a democracy should reside with individual citizens and organizations.

Whether there's an emergency or not, a lot of industries undoubtedly are extremely conservative about adding plant facilities. Some were burned by over-expansion in earlier periods. Others are just cautious.

Where this foot-dragging can be shown by business and economic experts to be handicapping the general growth of the economy, it certainly must be countered by some kind of government effort. Financial aid and protection is one important prod. Steady pressure on the industry through public channels is another.

But these devices should not include government power to finance and build its own plants. The Administration's obvious interest in exercising this authority in or out of crisis makes such a grant too risky for the free American economy.

Only the existence of actual large-scale war, in which time to apply the usual prods might be a luxury, would seem to justify sweeping entry of the federal government into industrial plant expansion.

COMPARE CASUALTIES

Because of the stress laid upon our Korean casualties by General MacArthur and others, the idea has got around that casualty rates and totals in this conflict are worse than any that American fighting men have ever known. Thus it may be wise to compare them with the record of some principal combat units in World War II.

Up until recently, the six U. S. divisions in Korea had lost 10,813 men killed. During about the same span of time, six key American divisions which fought from the Normandy beachhead to the German surrender lost 14,157 men killed. By this measure, the Korean campaign is not our roughest war.

Nor have casualties been mounting, as some people seem to believe. The rate was highest in the first critical weeks last summer. The highest numerical totals came in the weeks during and right after the Inchon landings in September, 1950. The December retreat from the Yalu river stood next highest. Neither of those totals have since been equaled.

With the oiling program well under way in all parts of the borough it behooves motorists to be a little wary in approaching earth streets.

Among the busy spots in the town these rare May evenings are the Beaty playgrounds and athletic field, both of which were well populated last night.

Here And There

An interesting visitor to the Times-Mirror office Tuesday afternoon was Alois Adamczyk, speaker earlier in the day at the meeting of the Lions Club, and who escaped from Poland after the Nazis and Soviets invaded that country in September, 1939. Probably the most interesting part of the brief interview we had with him pertained to the several types of confinement in Communist Poland. The first of these he described as "temporary arrest." He said every precinct of the citizens' militia (uniformed police) has on its premises a barred cell, where the prisoners are detained for 24 hours formally, but in reality for several days. This is the mildest form of confinement. From the militia cell the prisoners are dispatched either to the Security Bureau (U. B.) or to prison.

Another confinement, "Arrest in the U. B.," was explained as follows. Here people are confined for an indefinite period. Sometimes they are taken only for interrogation but then held for months and even years. The prisoners are kept in a cellar without a stove, bed or light. The windows are walled in to deprive the victims of even a glimpse of freedom. Questioning is usually conducted at night by investigating officers trained in the U. S. S. R. Every commander of a district U. B. must undergo prior to his appointment special courses in Russia. The identity of the prisoners in the U. B. cellars, the charges levelled against them and the length of confinement are closely guarded secrets. If relatives or friends manage to trace a prisoner to a particular Security Bureau and inquire within, their queries always remain unanswered. In U. B. prisons doctors are never summoned and deaths occur frequently. Those who are fortunate enough to leave the cellars must sign an obligation that they will tell no one of the conditions in prison. Agents-provocateurs approach the released prisoners questioning them about living conditions in U. B. prisons. One careless word may lead to a prison sentence from six months to three years.

In court prisons, he said, five persons are now confined to one prewar cell. There is no room for

British Exterminate Reds To End 'Dirty War' in Malaya

BY PETER EDSON
NEA Washington Correspondent

WASHINGTON—(NEA)—Mr. J. Christion Mathison, a Malayan rubber plantation manager, passed through Washington the other day, en route to his home in Scotland for a vacation. While in Washington, Mr. Mathison told a story about one phase of the anti-Communist war in Asia, which doesn't get into the papers much in these parts.

Malaya is about the same size and shape as Florida. But four-fifths of Malaya is virgin jungle, far wilder and denser than the Everglades, Big Cypress swamp or the Lake Okechobee wilderness. There are other differences. Whereas the Florida bandits are one-armed, or else retired from the Chicago wilds to ocean front palaces of respectability, the Malayan bandits stick to the jungle.

There are an estimated 5000 to 6000 of them. About 1800 to 1900 have been killed. With luck, says Mathison, they can be exterminated in a couple of years. Or at least they can be so reduced in numbers that their organized resistance will be broken up. That is the good news in the situation. But it is the dirtiest kind of war.

The bandits don't fight in the open, nor in maneuvers. They lie in ambush along the roads. And when a planter or tin mine operator or government official passes by—European and Asian alike—the bandits open fire, kill, then disappear into the jungle.

PLANTER Mathison's Bukit Pahol estate of 5000 acres, owned by a British company, is some 120 miles north of Singapore. His nearest neighbor is ten miles away. Along the road between them seven men have been ambushed and killed. Most roads are now being cleared of jungle, 100 yards on either side, to end ambushes.

The life of a planter today is pretty much the same anywhere on the peninsula. His house is surrounded by barbed wire. He carries a gun and travels with an armed guard wherever he goes. At night he must mount half a dozen guards.

Workmen on the plantations are now being moved into compounds to give them greater protection and to stop terrorism against the natives and Chinese who supply most of the labor.

All these safety measures are part of what is known as the Briggs defense plan. It takes its name from Gen. Sir Harold Briggs of the British Army, who has been director of operations against the bandits. He has about 25,000 British regulars plus some 75,000 police.

They now hunt bandits the way the Malayan suits used to hunt tigers. The only new touches are armored cars, tanks and airplanes. But they're no good in the jungles, where it may take a week to hack a mile off the trails.

THE bandits that have been caught have been definitely identified as Communists. The war in Malaya is part and parcel of the whole war in Korea, the Philippines, Viet Nam, says Mr. Mathison. But the leader of the Malayan Communists is unknown. There is no Ho Chi-minh, no Mao Tse-tung or other central figure masterminding the war. Direction is believed to come from Russia through China. Most of the bandits are alien Chinese, meaning Chinese not born in Malaya.

No arms supplies are known to have come from Russia or Red China by airplane or submarine. The bandit supply of arms—and it is a good one—came from the surrender of British and then Japanese armies on Malaya.

A year or so ago the Malayan Federated States government thought it had the movement licked. Then the British government recognized the Chinese Communist government and threw the whole anti-Red drive on Malaya into a tailspin. British planters didn't like that a bit. But Mr. Mathison says he'll go back to fight bandits again.

The Nation Today

By JAMES MARLOW

Washington—(P)—It's hard to get bored in Washington where things change around and people who were against something yesterday are for it today.

It was only last summer that President Truman said he saw no need for price and wage controls although Bernard Baruch, who convinced congress he was right, urged complete controls and in a hurry.

By the time September came around congress was so much for the idea, it passed a law—the Defense Production Act (DPA)—giving Mr. Truman authority to slap on the controls pronto.

In fact, Mr. Truman had the authority in his hands several months before he ever got around to setting up the barest kind of machinery for price controls, even though prices were rising rapidly.

This, of course, was a slightly different position from the one taken by Mr. Truman in 1946 when congress, particularly the Republicans, were itching to ditch OPA, which we still had at the time.

Mr. Truman wanted to keep it then, he said, to keep down inflation. But congress—a bunch of Democrats teamed up with most Republicans—put the skids under OPA.

And, sure enough, prices shot through the roof in spite of the soothing assurances, by some of the congressional bigwigs who disliked OPA, that once it was gone prices might go up but they would come down. Come down they did not.

(It was in that same year of 1946 when Mr. Truman wanted to keep OPA—in the November elections of 1946—that Mr. Truman's Democrats lost control of congress to the Republicans for the first time since 1932.)

Even after OPA died, with prices still rising, Mr. Truman asked congress for stand-by power to slap on price controls—when he thought they were necessary. Congress ignored his request.

Then last summer, just a couple of months after the Korean fighting and just before the congressional elections in November, when Baruch had needed congress into wanting controls, Mr. Truman suddenly didn't want them.

Democrats teamed up with Republicans wanting controls and together they passed the DPA. In the November elections the Democrats beat the Republicans. And by the end of November, with prices still rising, Mr. Truman set up the OPS—Office of Price Stabilization—for controlling prices.

But DPA expires June 30—meaning an end to all controls unless congress votes to continue it, either as it stands, or with changes that weaken or strengthen it.

By now, though, Mr. Truman has come around to the view that OPS is very necessary, so necessary, in fact, that on April 26 he most urgently asked congress to keep DPA not only after June 30 but for another two years, at least.

More than that, he asked congress to strengthen DPA, giving the government even wider control powers than it has under the act as it stands.

But now the mood of congress for controls seems a little less ardent than Mr. Truman's request for wider rent circles.

Nevertheless, since we're in the middle of a defense program, and things seem sure to get tighter and tougher before they get better, congress is pretty sure to continue DPA, whether stronger or weaker than now. But a DPA in some form.

The first of the hearings by congressional committees, which will tell the full congress what they think should be done, already have started. Representatives of the government, labor, farmers and business are telling the committees what they think about it.

And then later, probably just around the deadline of June 30, the full congress will finally get down to the job of voting on keeping the controls.

MENU SUGGESTIONS

BY GAYNOR MADDOX
NEA Staff Writer

COPENHAGEN—(NEA)—One of the major pastimes of the pleasure-loving Danes is the eating of open sandwiches. Here in Copenhagen there is a restaurant, Oskar Davidson's, with 172 different kinds on the menu.

The Danes call them smørrebrød and they are the national luncheon at home, in offices, at the factory and in schools.

One sandwich is named for Hans Christian Andersen, Denmark's popular hero. It is said to have been the favorite of the author of "The Ugly Duckling" and "The Little Match Girl." It's a slice of evenly buttered bread, spread with crisp slices of grilled bacon. Over these are laid slices of tomato, liver paste with truffles and then meat jelly and grated horseradish.

Beside it, on a white platter with delicate blue pattern, lies a shrimp sandwich, called "In a Crowd." It consists of a slice of buttered bread resting on a crisp lettuce leaf, supporting an amazing pyramid of tiny pink shrimp.

I often wonder as I eat these infinitesimal Danish shrimp where the cooks get the skill and patience required to shell them. These little shrimp caught along the Danish shores are as dear to us as the Danes as hot dogs are to us.

Pork liver paste rates high for smørrebrød, also. It is smooth and

So Mom's Got a Week Coming! Well, How Does She Get It?

A HOMEMAKING institute has figured out that the average housewife could have at least a week more vacation a year if she would grocery-shop once or twice a week instead of every day.

Sounds good on paper, but any housewife can point out the flaw in that kind of reasoning.

How is she going to store up those extra minutes saved every day and turn them into a week's vacation?

Suppose she goes to the trouble of setting up a fancy bookkeeping system, putting down every day just how many minutes she has saved by not marketing and can prove at the end of the year that the time adds up to one week—then what?

The time is gone, isn't it? And probably frittered away on something just as useless as every-day marketing.

TELL IT TO PAPA

LET her try to tell Papa she has a week's vacation coming to her and see how far she gets. Because what can Papa do about her accumulated time that is supposed to add up to a vacation?

He can't very well say, "Okay. I'll take a week off from the office and you go take that week's vacation you've saved up for yourself."

That's why the efficiency experts seldom get housewives very excited when they point out that they can save so much time by doing a particular job a certain way. The housewife knows very well that if she saves ten minutes a day on the job of bed-making, say, that she'll just turn around and decide the silver needs polishing.

There's not too much percentage in cutting minutes off of house-keeping jobs. Because housekeeping is a job, it's hard to quit and run out on. You just never say, "Now all my work is cleaned up for the day."

You can do that with a desk job. But homemaking is something else again.

Help Garden Seedlings to Break Through the Soil

It's a Big Job For a Young Sprout to Force Its Way Up Through the Soil, as These Bean Seedlings Prove.

Seeds sown in the open garden encounter many dangers. They or their seedling plants may be attacked by insects and diseases, drowned by floods, eaten by birds, injured by animals, or buried alive by a crust which forms on the soil through which they cannot penetrate.

By dusting the seed with a disinfectant, the moulds and fungi which cause disease may be prevented; and this is especially advisable in sowing early when the ground is cold. If there is any suspicion that the soil may crust above the seeds, it will be wise to use a special soil to cover them.

If your garden contains clay, a hard rain may compact it sufficiently to imprison the seed. The tiny sprout often faces an impossible task in attempting to break its way to the sunshine. The illustration shows two bean seedlings, one of the varieties most likely to suffer from crusty soil. The bean seed swells with moisture, and a sprout emerges which pushes the seed itself—twice as large as when planted—through the soil surface. This takes enormous power, and it is no wonder that a compacted or crusty soil may prevent it.

If you have a compost pile, there is no better way that you can use the humus from it than in preparing a special soil with which to cover seed. This should be mixed with sand half and half. In addition to making sure that the seed sprout will be able to emerge, this loose soil will hold moisture and keep the soil beneath it from drying out. It is therefore especially desirable in hot weather.

Most stores dealing in garden supplies carry modern seed disinfectants which can be used in either liquid or powder form. There is no danger to the seed in using these materials provided the simple directions furnished with them are followed, precisely. Never use any disinfectant in greater strength than recommended. It is remarkable what a small amount will do.

HERE'S WHY

the Gas Company can not add New Customers for Gas Heating without a permit

The entire situation with reference to new supplies of gas has changed. Southwestern pipe line owners are using their present facilities to the maximum and they have advised us that under present conditions they cannot further expand these facilities. No change in the foreseeable future is evident.

Every effort has been made to secure gas from other sources, without success. Therefore Pennsylvania Gas Company regretfully announces that effective immediately no new customers for gas heating can be approved.

The situation briefly is that the present supply of gas (which can not now be increased) determines the number of heating customers that can be taken care of and since that limit has already been reached, it will be physically impossible to supply additional gas for heating under existing conditions.

Applications for Gas for heating will continue to be received—filed in date order and permits granted according to Tariff classifications should conditions permit.

All persons using Gas for Heating —without permits— are subject to loss of ALL Gas Service

Unauthorized use of gas for heating will subject users to loss of all Gas service (in accordance with tariffs filed with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission) unless gas heating equipment is removed.

The use of gas for cooking, water heating and refrigeration is not restricted.

P. U. C. Approves Hike in Bus Fares

The Public Utility Commission today approved a $6,500 rate increase for Warren City Lines, Inc., Associated Press reported today from Harrisburg.

The PUC said it took no action to suspend the increase after an investigation showed it would not produce an excessive return.

The three for 25 cent tokens will be discontinued and a straight 10 cent basic cash rate established under the new schedule. Free transfer privileges will be established in Warren and a transfer plus five cent cash fare will be started on the Warren-North Warren and Warren-River road routes.

The school ticket cost in Warren will go from $1 to $1.25 for 20 rides and from $1.25 to $1.50 between Warren and North Warren.

Housewives Press Fight for Colored Oleo Legislation

Both House and Senate Agriculture committees have voted to reject bills legalizing colored oleo sales but now have new proposals before them.

Two companion measures were introduced in the house only yesterday to set machinery in motion for a statewide referendum on the oleo question. They were introduced by the eight-member Allegheny County Republican delegation.

Similar legislation was introduced earlier in the senate. Sen. Rowland J. Mahaffy (R-Crawford) introduced a measure calling for a statewide referendum on the issue in the 1952 primary elections.

"I think we will come to a working conclusion in the next day or two."

The comments of other committeemen, as disclosed in the stenographic transcript of the closed door debate, plainly indicated, however, that a majority was against any attempt to make Bradley tell about his talks with Mr. Truman.

The Democrats were largely lined up against it and had support from at least senator Morse of Oregon on the Republican side. Bradley testified for more than three hours yesterday, hitting at the MacArthur proposals on Korean war strategy as a plan which would put the United States into "wrong war, at the wrong place at the wrong time and with the wrong enemy."

Shortly before Dent's speech, the senate voted to increase the four per cent corporate net income tax to five per cent to bring in an additional $44,000,000 in the next two years. The house-passed bill then went to the governor for signature.

The remainder of Pine's tax program, short of his disputed income tax bill, also passed the senate and went to the house for concurrence in senate changes or to the governor for signature.

The action renewed $400,000,000 in present taxes besides adding the $44,000,000 to the tax bill of corporations.

Fighting early Wednesday was heavier than the customary patrol actions. But none of it reached battle size.

Carlson Store On Matthews Run Road Damaged By Blaze

Prompt work of the owners and neighbors with a garden hose, bucket brigade and extinguishers, pending arrival of Youngsville Fire Department, saved the Carlson Store at Matthews Run, about halfway between Youngsville and Chancellors Valley, from destruction yesterday afternoon at four o'clock. Damage from the blaze was estimated at about $1300.

Cause of the fire, which burned out the bathroom of an upstairs apartment, was given an overheated oil burner used to heat water. Mrs. Carlson, daughter of Ivan Carlson, was taking down some clothes in the back yard when she noticed smoke coming from upstairs windows. Youngsville firemen were immediately called and responded with three trucks and about 20 men, spending almost an hour on the blaze.

A portable pump and one pump-truck were used to supply water to 300 feet of 2 1/2 inch hose, pumped from a small stream which empties into Matthews Run near the store. Booster lines were also used.

The fire was confined mostly to the bathroom and to small parts of the hall and living room. Firemen were able to keep it out of a large vacant attic above the apartment.

Damage was estimated at $500 to the building and about $800 to contents, all covered by insurance. There was little or no damage to the store on the first floor.

Letter to the Editor

May 11, 1951

Mr. W. A. Walker,
Times-Mirror,
Warren, Penna.

Dear Mr. Walker:

Thank you for your letter of explanation relative to the non-publication of articles I wrote. I pulled the facts presented from an article which appeared in the Cleveland "Plain Dealer," and from a source no less reliable than the president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

I disagree with the assertion that my articles "only reiterated what someone else had said." True, the question of whether there was a housing shortage in Warren or not, had been batted back and forth to a considerable degree, but I submitted facts, well authenticated. I am sorry I did not keep a copy of my contributions which I expected to get into print at the psychological moment to have some effect on the vote taken.

Perhaps you would be interested in the article from which I took excerpts and revamped into shorter form. I am enclosing a typed copy of the Plain Dealer's article which was given double-column, top page location, with large double headline caption.

The fact that Warren Council was basing their whole consideration upon the question "Is there a housing shortage in Warren or not?" (that being, I believe, the basis whereby rent control in separate towns or cities can be abolished) seemed to me to make the facts I submitted of vital importance. I enclose a copy of the article because you may not have seen so concrete a presentation of facts and figures in the matter.

Here in Erie, the unfairness of the rent control law is even more apparent. Landlords ARE gouging tenants in thousands of cases, it is true. I know of old houses in poor locations made into 3 and 4 apartments of three rooms each which rent for $20.00 a week each apartment! I know of an old shack of 3 rooms out at Harbour Creek which a young couple had to rent from sheer necessity and pay $125.00 a month! Our landlord (for the first six years here) evicted us after we had put the apartment in much better shape than when we took possession. She moved into the upper flat we had occupied and rents her five rooms downstairs for $125.00. And in Warren for my five-room apartment I am getting $30-$34. There is no justice in the law which provides that new or re-modelled housing shall not be under control, when those of us who have furnished rental housing for years and cut rents 50% during depression days, are held to such tragically low rents.

Very truly yours,

Alice E. Sill Branch
1038 West 28th Street
Erie, Pennsylvania.

Alexander Summer, president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, yesterday denied that rent control is a national problem and asserted that it should not be the subject of federal legislation.

Since the proposed extension of rent control would affect only 3.6% of the people of the country and only 5.6% of total dwelling units, as indicated by comparing reports of the 1950 census with data on dwellings now under rent control as prepared by the Office of the Housing Expediter, congress should not be asked to continue the cumbersome law, requiring a vast federal bureaucracy to administer it, for but one-twentieth of the population, Summer said.

The same situation exists when dwelling units are considered, he said, pointing out that they would total 45,875,000 for the nation, and that only 2,390,739, or 5.6% would be affected by the proposed 90-day extension.

"A frantic effort is being made to keep political rent control alive, in spite of the fact that it has defeated its basic purpose of aiding tenants," he said. "Recent reports of the government's Bureau of the Census show that we have half a million fewer rental dwellings than we had 10 years ago when rent control started. This is true despite the fact that we have produced about three million new rental housing units in that ten-year period. Rent control, as administered in a high-handed way by federal bureaucrats, has been the major force in driving three and a half million rental dwellings off the rental market, making them unavailable to tenants.

While the federal government wastes money and runs up the national deficit in financing the administration of rent control, the controllers in turn build up an increasing deficit in the available supply of rental housing. And, ironically, unnecessary government credit controls stop the production of needed rental housing.

"Where shortages of rental housing exist, the situation cannot be remedied by rent control," he said. "Experience shows that rent control makes shortages worse by forcing rental housing off the rental market into the sale market. The only cure for housing shortage is production. Private industry is prepared to step in, if government will allow, and wipe out that shortage with new production. Material and men are available now. The industry is tooled up for peak output now. Now is the time to nip defense housing shortages in the bud by production. Rent control is the wrong medicine. It won't work to relieve shortages. It never did."

Retailers Urged
To Submit Pricing
Charts Immediately

In order to prevent a deluge of returns of required registrations and pricing charts that would flood and bog down the administrative machinery of the Erie District Office—Office of Price Stabilization—Director William J. Collins urges all retailers affected by Ceiling Price Regulation 7 to file pricing charts at the earliest possible moment.

Because OPS, on April 10th, brought many additional items under this regulation, and in order to make it possible for businessmen to file a single pricing chart covering the full range of merchandise handled by their establishments, the date for registering and filing pricing charts was extended from April 30th to May 30th.

Ceiling Price Regulation 7 applies to all retailers selling consumer goods such as wearing apparel, furniture, lamps, floor coverings, yarn goods, musical instruments, radios and television sets, phonographs and records, housewares, notions, luggage, sporting goods, silverware, chinaware, glassware, jewelry, watches, clocks, and other items of similar nature.

It establishes a "margin" type of price control requiring a "pricing chart" showing the price of goods sold on the "list date," what price was paid for these goods, and, therefore, what was the margin between cost and selling price. Having determined one margin in this manner, this chart is to be filed not later than May 30th with the District Office of OPS in the G. Daniel Baldwin building. The retailer must not use wider margins in pricing goods which he offers for sale than indicated by his chart.

Director Collins warned all businessmen coming under Ceiling Price Regulations to file at the local office and not send charts and registrations to Washington, as practically 100% of OPS operations covering the fifteen counties of northwestern Pennsylvania are to be processed and administered by his chart.

It was also announced that copies of Ceiling Price Regulation 24 covering ceiling price of beef at wholesale, effective May 8th, are now available at the district office and at various Chambers of Commerce and newspaper offices in the fifteen-county area. This regulation establishes the dollar and cents price of beef.

Sheffield Students Busy Rehearsing Annual Class Play

Sheffield, May 16—(P)—Seniors at Sheffield High School are putting the finishing touches on their class play, "A Swift Kick," to be presented at 8 p. m. Friday in the high school auditorium. Admission will be by complimentary tickets given by the seniors.

Mrs. L. O. Eisenhauer is directing the play which has the following students in the cast: Eddie Eisenhauer, Donald Pratt, Shirley Ledebur, Carol Henry, Theresa Mikar.

Joyce Vashaw, Elmer Nelson, Jerry Coderio, Mary Slater, Paul Gustafson, Joe Peracki, Jack Elder, Emmalou Kimberlin, and Martha Hoden.

Stage manager is Richard Hanson, and prompter, Emily Magnusson.

In the comedy, Eros Sprockett, played by Eddie Eisenhauer, is a capable student though he lacks courage—his wishbone needs to be replaced with a backbone.

Windy Allison, played by Donald Pratt, a school chum with a backbone to spare, undertakes to make the replacements and thrusts Eros into the town's political fight in a clean-up campaign against crooks, using the school paper, of which Eros is editor, as the weapon.

When the fight gets too hot, however, Eros is deserted and is forced to stand alone against the gang. Under threats from all sides, he weakens more and more; then suddenly courage comes to him and he arises to the occasion. The play ends with bright prospects ahead for him.

The Sheffield township road crew has been busy erecting new guard rails along Keystone and Mill streets. Only the painting of the new rails remains to be completed and this will be done as soon as the proper paint is available.

The crew will erect No Parking signs on Crary avenue from the railroad intersection in front of the First Methodist church towards the spot where the service-men's honor roll once stood. Drivers turning on to Crary avenue and the highway from South Main cannot see approaching vehicles when cars are parked in that area.

The Vagabonds of Sharon have been secured for their third engagement in Sheffield in recent months to provide music for a dance Saturday, May 19. The dance, to be held from 9 p. m. to 1 a. m. in the Odd Fellows Hall, Sheffield, is being presented by the choir of St. Michael's Greek Rite Catholic church for the benefit of the church.

Members of the general planning committee are Miss Irene Soas attend and bring cakes. Mrs. Merle Kibbey is chairman of this event.

Chapter 20

THE victory had been won but somehow the savor of it was not there. Jeff swore harshly to relieve his feelings. "Get busy!" he said harshly. "Tombstone, put more riders down at the entrance of those passages. Tell the cook to drive the chuck wagon into the yard and unhitch. See that the men have bunks. And keep a good watch. If the Starrs come back for their stuff let them take anything they want. But look out for tricks."

He set out for Silverstone, riding down the valley trail. The wind of his passage drove the gloom from him and the shame he had felt while watching Ruth was banished by thoughts of the reward Diana had promised him. He drew rein before the hotel at Silverstone half an hour before noon, went through the lobby, ran up the stairs and rapped sharply on Diana's door. "Diana!" he called, and twisted the knob. The door was locked.

From within came the sound of movements, the soft pad of footsteps, a tiny thud as though somebody had bumped into a chair, the almost imperceptible rasp of a hinge. He knocked again and called, "Diana! It's Jeff!"

"Just a minute, I'm dressing." He waited and presently the key turned in the lock and the door swung inward and Diana stood in the entrance. He said, "Good news this time, darling! The Starrs have left the valley!"

A look that was close to annoyance left her face and she cried, "Really?" and stepped back to let him into the room.

He followed her quickly, leaving the door ajar. "Yes, they gave up this morning. I paid off twenty of their men and let them go on their promise not to hang around. The Starrs took their wounded with them. Their cattle are penned back in the hills. My lady, the Starrs castle awaits your coming!"

She drew in her breath and the blue eyes flashed. "That's grand! Simply grand! It's mine now; all mine."

"We'll have dinner together, then I'll get a buggy and drive you out."

A little frown crossed her face and she shook her head. "I'd rather not go out today. Tomorrow, perhaps."

He looked at her in surprise. "Aren't you anxious to see your castle?"

"Of course, but I don't feel up to the long drive today. I've a little headache. I was lying down when you came."

"I'm sorry. How about dinner together?"

"Honestly, Jeff, I couldn't eat a thing." She pressed a hand against her forehead. "Be a dear and let me hibernate the rest of the day."

"Maybe I'd better have the doctor run over and take a look at you."

"It isn't that bad. Just a headache. You run along and I'll get Sam to drive me out tomorrow."

He turned away reluctantly. He was disappointed; he had expected a little more enthusiasm, some expression of gratitude. But then, if she had a headache, he stood with his hand on the door and her bed was to the left of him. His gaze went to it absently and was arrested by sight of a dark object which protruded from beneath the hanging shade of Diana's bed.

Diana's voice came from behind him. "Close the door when you go out, Jeff. I think I'll lie down again. And don't worry about me; I'll be quite all right by tomorrow."

He glanced over his shoulder at her and she smiled, looking very sweet and desirable. His face softened. "I hope so, darling. Good-bye."

HE closed the door softly and went down the stairs. A man's hat. Or was it a man's hat? He had never seen her wearing a Stetson. Had always pictured her in the saucy, pink bonnet she wore that first day he had seen her, but it was quite possible that she owned a Stetson. Certainly it was.

He muttered, "I'm even worse than Walt and Ben," and walked over to Sam Cooper's office. Sam was not in the lobby and the diningroom was closed. He went out again, got on his horse and rode towards the Purple Palace.

He wanted to see Cooper and tell him the news and he would wait dinner before undertaking the long ride up the valley. He swung his horse abruptly into a passageway and turned into the alley castle.

hotel barn and have him given a feed of grain while he ate.

He rode through the doorway and turned the horse over to a hostler, then rolled a cigarette and turned back towards the entrance. He stopped before he reached the doorway. Sam Cooper had come out of the hotel kitchen and was standing on the top step looking up and down the alley. He was wearing a black Stetson hat.

Jeff stood rooted, watching him. Cooper came down the steps and disappeared into the passageway which led alongside the building to the street. Jeff, fighting back suspicion, remained where he was. Had that been Cooper's hat under Diana's bed? Had Sam been there in her room with the door locked, and had she hidden him and pushed his hat beneath the bed before admitting Jeff?

For a moment his faith faltered and he remembered all Ruth Starr's bitter words; then he swore beneath his breath and stamped the half-smoked cigarette beneath the door. Diana would never be guilty of such deceit.

He went into the hotel and found the diningroom open. He had his dinner, eating slowly, waiting for Cooper. The lawyer did not show up and when he had finished Jeff crossed to his office. Sam was there and Jeff told him of the Double D's success. "I missed you at dinner," he finished. "Have you stopped eating?"

"Didn't feel like dinner," said Cooper casually. "I stopped in the kitchen and had the cook make me a sandwich. It's good news you bring, Jeff. You've done a fine job."

Jeff hardly heard his words of praise. Cooper had not been leaving the hotel by the rear door to prevent Jeff's seeing him; he had simply gone into the kitchen for a sandwich. Jeff felt very much ashamed of his doubts.

He found everything under control when he returned to the ranch. The Starrs had sent some men down with Ed Keever and they had driven off the rest of the coral stock and had loaded a wagon with furniture to take to Ruth's cabin. One of them had hitched up and driven the Star chuck wagon out into the hills and Tombstone assumed that the Starr crew were working hard to get the scattered cattle into parks where they could be held until John Starr recovered sufficiently to lead them back.

Chapter 21

THE following morning dragged along without incident and without Diana. Jeff worried about her, wondering if the headache had persisted, if it had been a prelude to more serious illness. At last, around mid-afternoon, he sighted a buggy approaching along the trail and distinguished the features of Sam and Diana. When they drove into the yard he had assembled the men who were not on duty and made a short little speech of welcome.

Diana, looking her sweetest, smiled on them and thanked them prettily. "I'm going to have Mr. Cooper drive me out to see the guards so that I can thank them all in person. Please stay right here. You too, Jeff. When I come back I'll have something to say to all of you."

They were gone over two hours and the cook had supper ready when they returned. When Jeff leaped forward to hand her from the buggy she said, "We're going to eat with the men. Tell the cook to set places for us. No fuss, now."

Delighted, he communicated her wishes to the cook and the men, and there was a concerted rush for soap and razors and clean shirts. Accompanied by Sam and Diana, Jeff entered the Starr home for the first time.

They ate in silence at first, but presently Diana began to talk, asking which was Bill and which was Tom and questioning them about their homes and travels and experiences. And soon they were all talking eagerly, anxious for her smile, neglecting their dinners.

The meal was finally finished and Diana said to Sam, "Will you get the box for me, Mr. Cooper?"

Sam went out and returned with a metal cash box which he set on the table before her. She looked slowly at her. "This," she announced, "is a sort of special payday. To the men lent us by our good neighbors on the Lazy K and the 88, I'm going to pay ten dollars apiece for their one day's work. The rest of you have been signed on a fifty dollars a month and found. I can't keep you all indefinitely, of course, but I'd like you to remain for one month at least. In addition, I'm paying each one of you Double D men a bonus of fifty dollars, and I'm going to hand it out now. Will each of you, as I call his name, come up and get his money?"

She was a queen, dispensing favors.

There was a moment of silence, then a roar of approval. When it had died Diana read the names from her book and handed each grateful cowboy a packet of money. It was impossible to keep down the noise; men talked to each other and slapped backs and swore that never had they worked for such a boss.

And when they were all paid, Sam shouted for order and got it.

Diana said, with that same soft smile on her lips, "And now for the final expression of my gratitude. Your foreman, Jeff Payne, was awarded at a salary of a hundred and fifty dollars a month and promised a bonus when he drove the Starrs from the valley. He has served just half a month but I am paying him for a full month. Still smiling, she put a package of banknotes before Jeff.

"As a bonus," she went on lightly, "I promised him some cattle with which to start a herd of his own. I'm authorizing him now to select any fifty animals from the Double D herd and will lend him as many men as he needs to drive them to the site he chooses for his range."

Again came shouts of approval and the excited hum of conversation. Under its cover Jeff leaned forward, his face tight, his eyes glinting. "And the rest of the reward, Diana? Darling, let me tell them now."

Her forehead wrinkled in a little frown and she regarded him puzzledly. "The rest of the reward? I don't understand. Tell them what?"

"That you love me," he said tightly. "That you're going to marry me."

"Marry you! Jeff, you must be crazy!"

Cooper was eyeing him coldly. "I'm inclined to think he is. What in the world's wrong with you, man?"

"She promised." Jeff got to his feet angrily, leaning over the table. "Back there at the Double D."

She turned wide eyes on Cooper. "The man's stark mad. I promised no such thing. How could I, with Dan dead less than two months?"

Jeff said, "Diana, look at me! Look me in the face and deny that you promised to marry me!"

She turned her wide-eyed stare upon him. "Of course I deny it, Jeff. Now please sit down and stop being ridiculous."

HE didn't sit down; he stood there staring unbelievably at her, stunned, numb of brain, hoping he hadn't heard her aright. And then slowly his mind began to function and little suggestive truths began to filter through it. The way she had played her cards against the middle with Walt and Ben; old Pappy Davis' veiled disapproval of her; Ruth Starr's hot words of denunciation; Buddy's infatuation and her denial of having known him; the visits to Sam Cooper, supposedly an business agent, and stammering together. By God, that was Cooper's hat beneath her bed!

Diana tried another smile on him, the smile of a patient mother for a wilful child. "Come, Jeff; put the money in your pocket and be gone."

"The money. Oh, yes." He picked up the packet and tossed it to the table before her. "I don't want your money. Sit still, Cooper, or I'll slap your horse face lopsided! I don't want your money. I don't want anything you have. You worked on Walt and Ben to get what you wanted and you worked on me to get Silver Valley. And now you've played Lady Bountiful to these men to win them to your side and you've lied about the promises you made to turn them against me. Well, you got everything you wanted. But you'll not keep Silver Valley because I'm going to take it from you."

Cooper sprang to his feet, his long, thin white with anger. "By God, Jeff Payne, you're not going to—"

Jeff hit him. He hit him with every ounce of force he could summon. Sam went backwards over the bench and hit the floor with a heavy thump, and Jeff turned and stumbled blindly through the doorway and into the blackness of the night.

Cooper came to his feet. His lips were bleeding and there was a tooth missing. He cried, "Don't let him get away! A hundred dollars, five hundred, to the man who gets him!"

They leaped to their feet, reaching for gunbelts which had been hung on wall pegs; then they faced Diana questioningly, remembering that after all she was their boss.

Her cornflower-blue eyes glinted. She said tightly, "That's my order too. Don't let him get away!"

They surged from the room in pursuit of Jeff.

Warren Merchants Baseball Nine Opens Its Season Saturday Afternoon Against Westfield

With prospects of fielding one of the strongest teams organized in several years, the Warren Merchants will open their 1950 campaign on Saturday afternoon against the Westfield Moose. The game will be played at the late Hospital field, starting at 2 o'clock. The tilt will go into the books as a Legion Semi-Pro league game, in which the Merchants squad is enrolled this year. The squad is under management of Emmett Morrison, former National Forge star, with Ray Reed as coach. A strong club already is organized and several outstanding players will be added as soon as the current college term ends and summer vacation begins. There is plenty of rivalry for all positions. Prospective moundsmen include Dave Lopez, Dick Kifer, Dean Whitaker, Dick Christiansen and a newcomer, Rod Kerchner. Providing the other half of the battery will be Don Sharp, Ruben Fisher and Ed Shanshala. Looking around the infield, the candidates are Jack Baker and Dick Armstrong at first; Guy Bearfield, Louie Bonace, Jack White and Dick Reed, at second; Nonnie Castagnino at shortstop; and Monk Murphy at third. Available for duty in the outfield are Bill Massa, Gerry Vesting, Bill Weidert, Chuck Fisher and Weasel Hammerbeck.

Morley Tops His Own Record for 880-yd. Run in Track Meet

For the second time this season, a new all-time Warren High school record for the 880-yard run was entered in the books. In both performances are credited to Rodney Morley. In the opening track meet of the year against Titusville, Morley broke the tape in two minutes and nine seconds to better six-tenths of a second the previous Warren High record of 1:09.6 set in 1926 by Bill Erhardt. Yesterday afternoon in the agons' meet with Oil City at the city field, Morley shaved 1.2 seconds off his previous performance for a new all-time record of 1:07.8. Outside of Morley's outstanding performance, however, things weren't much to the liking of the Warren thinclads as the Oilers liked away with a 69 1/2 to 39 1/2 umph. The down-river squad won the first, and padded their int-total with numerous second and third places, including a clean sweep of the 220-yard dash. Warren topped six first places, but added ground in the runner-up situations. Summary of the meet: 100-yd dash: Buckham (O. C.), 1st; Peters (O. C.), 2nd; Harrington (W), 3rd; 10.4. Mile run: Secor (O. C.), 1st; Espan (W), 2nd; Saltzman (O.), 3rd 5:04.5. 880-yd relay: Oil City (Pierce, Bickham, Rankin), 1st; 1:36.2. 440-yd. run: Irvine (W), 1st; Diem (O.C.), 2nd; DeLoe (W), 3rd; 53.0. 880-yd. run: Morley (W), 1st; Hazlett (O. C.), 2nd; Cramer (W), 3rd; 2:07.8. 220-yd dash: Buckham (W), 1st; Peters (O. C.), 2nd; Pierce (O. C.), 3rd; 24.0. Mile relay: Oil City (Black, Steffe, Dailey, Barnes), 1st; 3:48.2. Shotput: Pastrick (W), 1st; Kerr (O. C.), 2nd; Plegier (O. C.), 3rd; 44 ft., 5 in. Pole vault: Foley (W), 1st; Fritz and Sims (O. C.), tied for 2nd; 10 ft. Discus: Pastrick (W), 1st; Enos (O. C.), 2nd; Zweig (O. C.), 3rd; 117 ft. 2 in. High jump: Boring (O. C.), 1st; Kissinger (O. C.), 2nd; Thompson (W) and Geer (O. C.), tie for 3rd; 5 ft., 6 in. Javelin: Fisher (W), 1st; Callahan (O. C.), 2nd; Lockhart (O. C.), 3rd; 136 ft., 10 1/4 in. Broad jump: Kissinger (O. C.), 1st; Hegerty (W), 2nd; Steffe (O. C.), 3rd; 18 ft., 9 in.

William Raps Out 300th Homer, Blackwell Pitches One-Hitter

By The Associated Press

Ted Williams cracked his 300th home run. Only nine others had accomplished this feat.

Ewell Blackwell and Vern Bickford hooked up in a brilliant pitching duel that produced only three hits in the Cincinnati-Boston game. Blackwell allowed one hit to win, 1-0. Only twice before in the last 50 years have there been games in which fewer hits were made.

Yet, these exploits had to take a back seat yesterday to a bizarre stunt pulled by a rookie manager who once was billed as the "switch - hitting, ambidextrous hitting pitcher from Waxahachie" (Texas).

This is how Paul Rapier Richards, in his first year as leader of the Chicago White Sox, stole the baseball thunder.

With his team leading the Red Sox, 7-6, and Southpaw swinging Ted Williams leading off for Boston in the last half of the ninth, he replaced righthander Harry Dorish with lefty Billy Pierce. But Dorish did not go to the bench. Instead, Richards benched third baseman Orestes Minoza and moved pitcher Dorish there. Pierce got Blackwell pitched a pair of one-hitters last year.

The major league record for the fewest hits made by both teams in one game is two.

The victory moved the Reds out of the cellar into sixth place. Back again into the basement fell the New York Giants who dropped a 7-3 decision to Bill Werle and the Pirates in Pittsburgh.

Brooklyn strengthened its first place hold with a 8-4 victory over the Cubs in Chicago. Two homers by Gil Hodges, a grand slammer by Duke Snider and another round tripper by Jackie Robinson, accounted for all but one of Brooklyn's runs.

A pinch single by Bill Nicholson with the bases loaded in the ninth gave the Philadelphia Phils two runs and a 5-4 victory over the Cards in St. Louis. The win moved the Phils into a third place tie with Pittsburgh.

Detroit handed Sandy Consuegra his first loss as the Tigers pounded out 14 hits for a 12-4 victory over Washington. Hal Newhouser spaced nine hits for his third win.

The St. Louis Browns won a free-swinging battle with the Athletics in Philadelphia, 11-8. Gus Zernial hit two homers for the Athletics for the second straight game. Ned Garver was the winner. He has won five of the seven St. Louis victories.

Talks by Secretary Trace Interesting Information on Early History of YMCA

While Dan K. Walton, general secretary, has delivered addresses on the 100 years of YMCA history to both the Social Science section and Rotary Club, the "Y" is tied in with community life to such an extent a resume of its development will be of interest to the public generally.

The first Young Men's Christian Association in the United States was organized in Boston, Mass., in 1851, after visitors from London had been impressed with have been developed to the present. Religious work; an educational program started in 1870; work with the railroad men in 1872; work with and for servicemen; industrial programs; and all types of boys' work.

From a world wide viewpoint, one of the outstanding Christian leaders was James R. Mott, under whose direction the association enjoyed a period of great expansion in the United States and throughout the world between 1915 and 1925. The 1950 YMCA year book shows 9,660 YMCAs in 77 countries, with a total membership of 3,523,000. In the United States alone there are 1,631 associations with a membership of 1,321,328. Warren has over 900 members, more than half of which are boys and girls.

A study of various sources is necessary to get a picture of what the "Y" has meant to Warren since, according to State YMCA records, it was first organized here in 1887. As early as 1869 it had 81 members, with A. Gerould as its president.

However, records existing in Warren seem to date back only to 1886, when a group of public spirited men under the leadership of Francis Henry reorganized an association which they incorporated on August 10, 1891. The first meeting rooms are described in the old Hoffman Block building; the first YMCA building was erected in Liberty street, where the Masonic Temple now stands, and was dedicated in October, 1897.

A. F. Kottcamp came to serve the association in 1909 and continued faithfully for 24 years. Many events took place during his administration: In October, 1911, the building was totally destroyed by fire; in a single week in May, 1912, $77,000 was raised in subscriptions for a new YMCA home, and in the first week of January, 1913, its formal opening and dedication saw the structure and its entire contents all paid for and a small operating balance remaining in the treasury.

Serving as the building committee for the present structure were E. H. Beshlin, Dr. O. S. Brown, H. G. Eaton, E. E. Allen, A. J. Hazeltine and Mr. Kottcamp. Others on the board were George H. Miller, president; Dr. Brown, Clare C. Gray, vice presidents; George F. Henry, treasurer; W. F. Bennett, recording secretary; C. W. Benjamin, B. G. Gregory, R. H. Hatton, C. W. Jamieson, Charles Schimmelfeng, H. P. Stone, F. C. Tochterman; trustees, C. T. Conarro, Mr. Hazeltine, W. F. Messner, E. D. Wetmore, Mr. Stone, Mr. Schummel-

Plymouth's New "Safety-Flow Ride" Takes Bounce Out of Bumps

MOTION PICTURES made by our engineers show how little the new Plymouth goes up and down when passing over a bump, compared to cars that do not have the new "Safety-Flow Ride." New Oriflow shock absorbers, along with balanced weight distribution, synchronized springing, and other engineering features, hold the car closer to a level plane. They give Plymouth the riding qualities of a car weighing a thousand pounds more, in the opinion of Tom McCahill, automotive expert, writing in Mechanix Illustrated.

OUR TEST DRIVERS repeatedly drove the new Plymouth across ditches and deep holes. Instead of the terrific pitching and tossing you'd expect, the car absorbed the impact and stayed under easy control.

"SAFETY-FLOW RIDE" IS SO STEADY, even on rough roads, that you don't worry about giving rear seat passengers a toss or thump. This means peace of mind as well as bodily comfort. It's relaxed and restful—a completely new experience in riding comfort.

HEADS UP! With "Safety-Flow Ride" you can forget about the condition of the road immediately in front of the car and give your entire attention to oncoming traffic, pedestrians, and intersections ahead.

Armed Forces Day...EVERY DAY

This week the Nation pays special honor to the men and women of our Armed Services...and Bell Telephone joins in the special tribute.

But in a broader sense, it's our privilege to serve these men and women every day...from the moment they arrive in camp for basic training.

That's why we're doing our utmost to provide plenty of telephone service in camps and hospitals throughout Pennsylvania. In addition to the many telephone circuits needed for rapid expansion and day-to-day operation, we're adding scores of telephones for those important calls back to Mother and Dad...and we're installing more and more special telephone equipment in hospitals so that wounded men can make calls right from their bedside.

All this takes a lot of telephone equipment. But you know...as we do...how greatly these men treasure that telephone link with home, and you'll agree that this job deserves the best we have, regardless of costs or equipment shortages.

Dr. Brown and Mr. Eaton have served over 40 years. W. F. Bennett was recording secretary for more than 35, and Clarence Beckley was on the board for over 25 years. C. J. Cray was a vice president in 1913 and later, now, a member of the board of trustees, giving him 40 years of service to the association. Ed Johnson deserves special mention for 33 years in the office of treasurer. W. E. Yeager was at one time boys' work secretary and later served on the board.

Many, many others have given of their time and talents in promoting the Y's program of activities and recognition will be paid a number of these volunteer workers at the Thursday night anniversary banquet.
